Submissions for ‘What Our Members Are Building & Restoring’

Send Us Photos of Your Completed or Restored Aircraft

Share your craftsmanship and completed aircraft with EAA Sport Aviation readers worldwide. Send us a photo (please, no Polaroids) and a description of your project and, space permitting, we'll use it in “What Our Members Are Building & Restoring.” Your photo and description may also appear on the EAA website at www.eaa.org.

We reserve the right to edit your description for brevity or clarification, and photos will not be returned. Please include your name, address, and EAA number with your submission, and include your e-mail address so other EAAers can contact you about your project.

Submissions are published at the sole discretion of the publisher and may appear in any of EAA's publications or its website.

Send photos and project descriptions to:

Tips for Digital Photographs

Digital cameras are great, and we get many submissions with digital photos. Here are a few hints to help ensure your digital picture finds its way to the magazine rather than the file drawer.

- Make sure there's enough resolution. What looks good on your computer screen may not work in print. Generally, a full-resolution picture from a 2 megapixel camera or better is required.
- Don't print it from your computer and send the print. While it is possible to get a publication-useable print from a personal computer, it requires special paper and know-how.
- Don't place the file into a Word document or make a PDF of it. Please send it as a JPG or TIFF file.
- Name your file. Your camera will put a name on your picture that won't make sense to anyone. Change the file name to your name and the airplane type, such as “SmithGlasair.doc.”

Keep in mind the photo file will be big and will tie up a dial-up e-mail account for some time.
